

Accreditation questionnaire guide

For charities of 0-9 employees

Overview

We're delighted you've decided to register with the Good Business Charter. We are really excited to have you join with us to promote a better and fairer way to conduct business.

The self-certification process takes the form of a series of questions requiring a Yes or No answer which should take you less than one hour to complete. Accreditation to the Good Business Charter requires you to meet each of the 10 components if you are a company or 9 if you are a charity.

In the majority of cases you will be asked if you are currently fulfilling a certain criterion for the Good Business Charter. If you answer 'No', you will be asked if you commit to do it going forwards. Our focus is on good intent in this regard. So a commitment going forwards means that within 3 months (or 12 months for tax) you will have started to put any changes required into motion. Some of the detail may take a few months to implement and we are definitely not expecting that to be fully in place within 3 months. Intent and commitment is the key.

For the detail on any component we would ask you to refer to the individual web page for that component (<https://goodbusinesscharter.com/our-10-components/>). Each of these pages explains what you are going to be asked in the questionnaire.

If you are concerned that you will not be able to answer these questions but believe that your business or charity practices follow the spirit of this component, please consult with us so that we can make a judgment on whether we believe you meet the requirements of the component. We are really keen to have organisations of all sizes and from all types of industries and sectors joining the Good Business Charter. These are standard questions and for some organisations there may be questions that are just not relevant or too onerous. We want to hear from you if you feel that is the case and we will take a sympathetic view.

Equally, organisations with a smaller number of employees may feel that the wording of the questions is rather technical for the way they operate. We do not want to exclude anyone behaving responsibly just because they feel this has not been designed with their organisation's size or industry in mind. We encourage you to apply the questions to your own unique setting and if in doubt, do contact us on info@goodbusinesscharter.com to explain the way in which you believe in your own way that you meet this component so that together we can consider whether it is sufficient or what else may be necessary to receive GBC accreditation.

Questions for GBC accreditation

Charity 10-50 employees

These are standardised questions for any size of company. Where there are few employees we accept that ways of ensuring employee representation and diversity may be less structured than we set out here. The key is that what you do have in place embraces the spirit of the GBC.
